As an attorney for enterprising people it is not my job to make sure that you are theoretically right - it is my job to help your business to be successful. Profitability for your business is the primary target that determines the way I work. Instead of limiting myself to the role of an external advisor who responds only when called, I take the time to learn how your company operates so that in dealing with details, I always keep the big picture in mind.

In all business matters - and especially in construction law - the combination of specialised legal expertise, industry experience and knowledge of specific technical and process issues forms a solid foundation that protects you from costly design flaws and helps you to increase profit through security in planning. That's the standard you can measure my work by.
