

Sarah Kluge

I have advised and represented companies on all aspects of labour law for many years. In addition, I have been working as an inhouse counsel for various companies.

Amongst other things, I have advised numerous clients in the process of reorganization and in work council meetings. I also conduct management training programmes on a regular basis. In my experience the old truism has been confirmed which says “personnel development and personnel measures should be planned early on and should be professionally managed”. And this is exactly what I would like to help you with.
